CHINAMEN HELD FOR GRAND JURY

Charged with Gambling—Judge Sims Renders Decision.

In the construction of the statutes relative to gambling depends the innocence or guilt of the eight Chinamen who were arrested in the cellar at the Chinese restaurant on Fleet street, July 15, Judge Thomas H. Sims of the municipal court, who has debated the matter about two weeks, has decided to hold the Chinamen for superior court. The eight have deposited cash bail equivalent to $250. Harry Chin, proprietor of the restaurant, has put up $100 in cash for his appearance to answer to the charge of maintaining a gambling nuisance. The original complaint against the Chinks was under the statute of playing any game of chance for money or other property. That charge was finally not pressed and a new charge drawn which reads, "Did gamble and play cards for money." The first was in Judge Sims's jurisdiction. The second was not and finding probable cause he held the men for the grand jury. When City Marshal Thomas Entwistle raided the restaurant with Patrolmen J. Frank Shannon and Frank H. West, he claimed that the proprietor turned a button that darkened the cellar beneath. The light was turned on but the cellar was darkened momentarily as the officers testified that they saw the Chinamen reaching hurriedly for an unknown object of objects that rested upon the table. The public has been much interested in this raid and capture of nine Chinamen who were in their own cellar passing the time away in their harmless sport of their own, while it is alleged there is so much public gambling going on here.

COOK ON THE BACK PORCH

With one of these absolutely safe NEW PERFECTION OIL STOVES, you can cook with the fresh morning air all around you independent of pipes and gas fixtures. A good many women are using this plan. It keeps the kitchen cooler, takes little fuel and saves the dread of each morning in the kitchen. The fuel these stoves use is surprisingly small in quantity and low in cost. Don't swelter and ruin your complexion for a few cents a day.

RYE DEFEATS GREENLAND

The Rye Beach team, composed of star college players, were handed one on Thursday at Rye when the Greenland team, composed of four Bracketts and the remainder stars of this city, defeated them by a score of 6 to 5.

Atwood from the U. S. S. Wheeling pitched for Greenland and although he was found for nine hits he got excellent support from Wilbur, who was behind the bat. W. Brackett at short, C. Brackett at third and Lynsky in the field, while Ira Newick did the stick work, making three hits, two singles and a triple, the longest hit seen at the Farragut grounds.

The Rye team had two men in the box, Parker of Princeton, who was knocked out in the sixth, and Greeley of Yale, who did not fare much better.

JUSTIFIED NAME OF SCOUT CRUISER

Washington July 27—The flying trip of the scout cruiser Chester from New England to Haiti to protect Americans in that country during the revolution, has amply justified the building of the rapid scouting ships of this class, in the opinion of naval officers.

The Chester, a turbine driven ship, got her sailing orders last Thursday afternoon and was able to steam away from Bradford, near Newport, R. I., the next morning. She struck a gale of 18 2-3 knots an hour and covered the 1400 miles in three days and three hours, arriving there Monday morning.

Commander B. C. Decker is receiving much praise at the navy department for the preparedness in which he had kept his ship.

ONCE PUBLISHER OF THE CHRONICLE

Major Daniel J. Vaughan of 7 Larch road, Cambridge, died at a private hospital in Boston Thursday from an apoplectic shock at the age of 80 years. Major Vaughan, who for 18 years was manager of the vaults of the Cambridge Trust company, had been ill but three weeks.

He was born in this city and served four years in the Union army during the Civil war, where he was severely wounded.

He was brevetted for gallantry on the field of battle, and later organized the New Hampshire militia, and was commander of the G. A. R. in this state.

Major Vaughan served two terms in the New Hampshire Legislature, a member of Governor Shaw's staff, and then a pension agent for several years, as well as city clerk here for a considerable period. He at one time was publisher of the Portsmouth Chronicle.

He removed to Cambridge 18 years ago, becoming manager of the vaults of the Cambridge Trust company, position he held until May of this year, at which time he retired. He was an Odd Fellow and a member of the Knights of Pythias.

He leaves a widow and two children, Walter C. Vaughan of Watertown, and Mrs. James Thomas Pugh of Cambridge.

RAILROAD WILL SHARE EXPENSE

President Mellen Issues Orders Settling Paving Controversy Between Railroad and City.

The controversy between the city and the Boston and Maine railroad over the paving of Islington street, has been settled by President Mellen, ordering that the railroad stand their share of the expense of paving.

From the letter received Thursday from President Mellen by Mayor Badger, it is evident that the controversy was due to a misunderstanding, for as soon as President Mellen got the right of the matter from the Mayor he issued the orders. It appears that President Mellen had the impression that the work contemplated was that which had been done last fall, to be done over again, and as soon as Mayor Badger informed him that it was now work entirely, he wrote, stating that he had issued orders to General Manager Barr instructing the latter to bear their proportionate share of the expense.

This being settled the work on Islington street can be started at any time, as it was given out that it was the intention of the contractors to carry on this work at the same time as that on Richard's avenue.

Board Hear Reports

The meeting of the Board of Public Work on Thursday was taken up with the paving contract talk and going over the matter with Mayor Badger who, on Thursday, along with Mr. Connors, who made the charges, went over the work on Richard's avenue.

Engineer Dudley made a preliminary report on the Cus farm water question and it was favorable, although not complete. He finds that under the clay bed there is a gravel strata which holds a great quantity of water.

A BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET

Hub Not to be Shot Up Texan Style
How Little Johnny Bostonbeans is Learning to Appreciate Art—Another Model Settlement House Settles on Back Bay Basin—Cabaret Shows Bostonese Some New Winks.

Boston, July 28, 1911.—The Hub's latest among its many philanthropic movements appears in the completion of plans and beginning of active work for the buildings of the new Peabody settlement house in the West End. This house, which will be seven stories high, is to be located on Charles street on the site of four old brick houses to be demolished. There is about every requirement provided for that one could suggest in the way of a settlement house, from a milk dispensary on the first floor to the boys' billiard room and a broad open air garden on the roof. Quarters for resident and district nurses, a theatre in which plays in Yiddish, Italian, Gaelic and other languages, meetings of mothers' and fathers' clubs, and public meetings of various kinds, will be held. There will be kindergarten, gymnasium, manual training, printing, model tenement, kitchen, home making, dressmaking and domestic science departments, and a free immigrant school. The house fronts on the city playground and the Charles River basin and is in a location where much good may be done through its activities. Several Harvard professors are handling the details of certain departments and the personnel of the workers is of the highest. Withal, the Peabody Settlement House should be enabled to continue a former good work on a very much enlarged and improved basis.

The blood curdling experience of being shot up by a Texas cowboy is eagerly awaited by prosaic Beantown. The delegates from the Lone Tree state to the big advertisers' convention are promising some such thriller. Texas wants this same convention next year and if spectacular demonstrations will win it, it is the Texans without argument. The Associated Advertising Clubs of America are, of course, anticipating the convention of their lives in the Hub from August 1 to 4, and lively proceedings are under way to make the days one continuous round of excitement. Three hundred Texans are en route in a special train of fifteen cars, and an exhibit of Texas products. These gentlemen will give a parade on their arrival, in which, with police permission, they will be led by a really truly hope-to-die cow puncher who will shoot up the town with blank cartridges as the assemblage moves towards its hotel. The police, however, have refused to sanction the spectacular gun play. The Georgia delegates have sent two carloads of the best Georgia watermelons, enough to supply 4000 people. These melons will be preserved until Thursday evening, when there will be an old-fashioned Southern melon ecuiting at the Great New England clam bake to be given by the Pilgrim Publicity Association at Point of Puffs. Many women advertisers and wives of men members will be present in the city, and special programs of entertainment have been arranged for them.

Little Johnny Bostonbeans is studying art. Every week day through the summer months a carload of fifty or sixty children between the ages of 8 and 11 makes its way from some one or more of the city's playgrounds or settlement houses in the thickly populated sections to the cool, beautiful new Museum of Fine Arts on Huntington line, officially known as the museum's story teller, leads the group of wide-eyed youngsters through the various departments, telling them interesting tales about the wonderful things they are seeing, and instilling in their minds a respect and would otherwise be very unlikely to acquire. Miss Hopkins takes care not to confuse the children with too much detail, preferring them to leave with a clear impression of a few of the best things. It has been found that the Japanese stories and the visit to the Japanese Garden attract them most of all. After the tour through the museum and the illustrated lectures are over there is a treat of lemonade and the children are given post cards bearing side of the dining room on which pictures of the objects they have fancy dancers, trained dogs and seen. Then they heard the special story men do their respective car for the return trip. In this way, stunts, with between whiles the anticipated fall term of school begins expected voice of a remarkably fine over 2000 of the city's youth will soloist ringing forth from another have become familiar with some of the world's greatest treasures. The idea is that from the interest awakened in a few objects, the young people will return again and again to become better acquainted with the entire collection at the museum.

Clicquot Club GINGER ALE

Clicquot Club Ginger Ale is made of the purest confectioners' sugar, Jamaica ginger and citric fruit flavors the earth affords—and the purest and best water. Fresh, country air sweeps through the factory, and the blending and carbonating (done under the supervision of an expert chemist) is in surroundings as clean as a model housewife's kitchen. Clicquot Club is the kind of ginger ale you would make for yourself if you had our facilities.

Boston is coming on. With a disconcerting short of surprise a Boston girl came to this realization. The occasion of the shock was the discovery that in the environs of staid old Boston an enterprising restaurant proprietor has instituted a cabaret show—the real thing, quite New York. A popular palm garden, an airy and delightful eating place at one of the seaside resorts of Boston harbor, announced this Cabaret show, from 11 in the evening, and curiosity as to just what Puritan Massachusetts would stand for led the Boston girl to linger until the last train. For the benefit of those from Podunk Corners and West Conterville the management kindly places a card on each table which explains that the meaning of cabaret is a place where food and drink is sold, while a light entertainment is given to the patrons. The conclusion is obvious. One is expected to, at least buy a claret lemonade or bottle of ginger pop and observation discovers more planked steaks and broiled fishes than ham sandwiches.

TO INVESTIGATE INVESTIGATING COMMITTEE

Washington, July 28.—"Investigate the investigating committees." This summarizes a resolution introduced by Representative Robert of Nevada. Mr. Roberts wants the House to find out the number of junketing trips the various investigating committees of the House have taken. Further, the "Committee of Investigation of Investigations" is to find out how much these committees have spent and how they spent it and what salaries they are paying to the people on their payrolls, the "sum shoe" men and others who dig into corners for clues and information the committees desire.

HAS SECURED EXPERT

Concord, July 28.—Gov. Robert P. Bass has secured the service of an expert road builder from the department at Washington, who is to make an investigation of all the state roads with a view to making suggestions, not only concerning the proper methods of construction, but also in regard to maintenance.

The governor expects that the expert will arrive in this city Monday and it is his intention to pass a week touring the state road with the expert in order that he can obtain sufficient information which to base a comprehensive report.

NOSE DISLOCATED

Local Doctor Finds Seegar's Nose to be Out of Joint

He Was Struck by Petty Officer of U. S. S. Wisconsin

The story of the striking of an employee of the navy yard by an amateur at arms as told by the correspondent of the Union is as follows:

Confined to his home with a broken nose, blackened eyes and large abrasions of the face Louis Seegar, an employee of the ship fitting crew, is said to be the first victim of an assault by an enlisted man since the navy yard was inaugurated. Seegar attributes the assault committed upon him to Chief Master at Arms Ferris of the battleship Wisconsin.

Seegar was employed on the battleship. He was engaged in drilling screw holes at the stern of the ship. Becoming thirsty he went forward to the "scuttle butt" which corresponds to a drinking fountain. All employees are permitted to obtain water from this supply.

As Seegar drank the water his right foot rested upon the brass rail beneath the water tank. He claims that he was interrupted by a voice from behind saying, "Don't you work me! know anything?" When he had concluded the drink he turned and was accosted by Ferris.

Seegar claims that the master at arms repeated the question and at the same time slapped him across the face with his open hand. The workman, who is of small stature, claims that he had sufficient time to say to Ferris, "You will suffer for this," before the burly sailor charged upon him and bore him down upon a chest. Seegar claims that Ferris continued to pound him upon the head and face until workmen dragged him away.

When Seegar arose to his feet he went to the office of Naval Constructor W. L. Robert and reported the alleged assault. He was advised by Mr. Robert to return to the ship and wait until he, Robert, arrived. Upon the arrival of the naval constructor Seegar, Ferris and several witnesses of the alleged encounter were summoned before Lieut. Comdr. R. K. Crank, commanding of the battleship.

The story was rehearsed and as a solution Ferris was asked to "beg the pardon," of Seegar. This was done after several attempts at evasion, according to the witnesses, and the affair was dismissed.

Subsequently Seegar's nose began to enlarge and he was sent to the naval dispensary. His nose was found to be broken. He was treated at the naval hospital and then sent to Dr. Arthur C. Heffenger in this city. Dr. Heffenger said today that the small bones of Seegar's nose were dislocated.

Since the alleged assault Seegar has been confined in his home at Kittery Point, Me. It is said that he is reticent of bringing the alleged assault to a further investigation, but that he permit fellow workmen to do as far as they choose.

NEW CASTLE

New Castle, July 28. Aquarius has seemingly at last been coaxed from his hibernation and his weary mood is very much appreciated. As Zenophon cried out "The sea! The sea!" so many people in New Castle this morning were exclaiming joyously "The rain! The rain!" What we need is a three days downpour not a fitful sprinkling and then everything, man, beast and vegetable, would take on a new lease of life and bear a living word to every living thing. The pet plants would get their inning. It is well known that one hour of good rain is worth twenty-four hours of hazing. It is impossible to equal nature when she is but half way genial.

The British Parliament Is Torn By Bitter Fight Over the Veto Bill

PREMIER ASQUITH

HOUSE OF COMMONS

No such contest ever was waged in the British parliament as that over the so called veto bill. At times the situation has taken on the aspects of a revolution, as evidenced on one occasion by the hooting down of Premier Asquith. The veto bill purports to remove from the house of lords the right to veto the acts of the house of commons. It originated in the commons, where it was passed. The lords, having enjoyed the veto power for so many years, naturally showed great unwillingness to relinquish it, and when the bill came before them it was so amended as to practically nullify its chief provisions. The situation has thus been deadlocked. The king has used his influence to bring about an amicable solution. As a last resort he may have to create enough additional peers to insure the ultimate passage of the bill in the lords.

Cooking Ham.

Ham is frequently too salt to fry without previous preparation. Put the slices in tepid water and let them stand on the back of the range to soak out the salt, not to boil, for about half an hour. Drain dry between towels, then fry in a hot spider.

When a whole ham is to be baked or boiled let it stand overnight covered with cold water.

KITTEY LETTER

Kittery, July 28.

The resignation of Postmistress Jessie Fernald, who has been in charge of the Kittery postoffice for a number of years, has brought out give aspirants for the position. Miss Anna Hubbard, now assistant, has a petition that is being signed by many patrons of the office. During the recent illness of Miss Fernald she was in full charge and proved herself fully equal to the occasion in every way.

Other candidates are Thomas E. Wilson, tax collector; Frank L. Parker, photographer; William T. Spinney and Attorney Elmer J. Dorn, all well known citizens of our village. ## DINED THE AUDIENCE.

And the Treat Proved a Fine Ad. For Liszt and Rubini.

An article in an Italian review contains an interesting story of Liszt and Rubini, the tenor. They were touring together and visited a town where, from the preliminaries which had been arranged, great things were expected. But they were disappointed, for when they entered the hall they found only fifty persons present.

Rubini was furious and said he would not sing, but Liszt calmed him. "You must sing," he said. "This small audience is evidently composed of musical connoisseurs of the town, so we should treat them with respect." Liszt set the example with a grand overture, and Rubini sang to perfection. Liszt gave another piece and then addressed the audience.

Liszt as an orator was as tactful as he had been in the role of pacificator. Addressing his audience of fifty, he said: "Ladies and gentlemen—there was only one lady present—I think that you have had enough music. Allow me to ask you to take a little supper with us." After a few seconds the invitation was accepted, and Liszt and Rubini entertained the audience to supper at their hotel, which cost them 1,200 francs.

When the guests separated the hosts thought the affair had been a joke, about which nothing more would be heard, but they decided to give their concert as advertised on the following night. To their astonishment the hall was packed. There was not standing room. The whole town had turned out on the off chance of an invitation to supper.

PATAGONIAN INDIANS.

Customs of the Remnants of a Once Powerful Tribe.

Normally the Tehuelches, as the Patagonian Indians are called, are a peaceable and kindly people, yet they are impulsive, capable of strong prejudices, very revengeful and—often with good reason—suspicious of strangers. They are not to be trifled with and when under the influence of drink are brutal and dangerous. They show love for their children and wives and kindness to their old people. They are divided into numerous tribes or groups, each having its chief or cacique, upon whom the burdens of government rest but lightly.

They believe in a good and an evil spirit, whom they propitiate, and have many stories, myths and superstitions connected with the sun, moon and stars, while the slaying of horses and drinking of blood form a conspicuous part of their superstitions, birth, marriage and death ceremonies, many of which are most repulsive.

When Magellan first passed through the strait there were perhaps no fewer than 10,000 Patagonians coming from the Rio Negro to the strait, while today, driven back from the littoral to the high pampas and the foothills of the Andes, altogether they would probably not total over 500.—Harper's Magazine.

The Smallest Pension.

Great Britain's pension system is as liberal as may be considering the vast number of persons carried on both the military and the civil lists, but in one case the record for smallness of payment has undoubtedly been established. Various factors enter into determining the amount to be paid sailors, and these factors so combined against one old salt that it was found that he could draw a pension of not more than fourpence—8 cents—a year. Promptly on each quarter day there comes an official communication transmitting the amount due in the form of postage stamps, and he is granted leave of absence in order that he may convert this into money at the post-office. Then, after the proverbial number of sailors, he promptly proceeds to "blow" the entire amount.—New York Tribune.

Wordsworth's Sense of Smell.

Poets have not failed to do perfumes justice, but one major poet—Wordsworth—went through life without a sense of smell and was not sorry for it. Nature, he told Aubrey de Vere, seemed to him all the more a vision. But once, and once only, did Wordsworth smell, and the prosaic household illustrates the unpollished householder ways of his time. He sat down with his family to the midday dinner and began to carve a leg of mutton. The leg of mutton was stuffed with onions, and for once, and once only, the sense of smell was revealed to him. The onions, suddenly laid bare, conquered.—London Standard.

Taxed the Beards.

Peter the Great of Russia levied a tax on beards. Finding that his subjects were disposed to keep their beards at any expense of money, he ordered all those he found bearded to have the hair plucked out with pinners or shaved with a blunt razor. Russia then became a beardless nation.

A GOOD REVENUE

From figures given out by Joseph S. Matthews in charge of that department in the State House, it is evident that the inheritance and the succession tax will be a big source of revenue for the state.

For the first ten months of the current year the revenue to the state from this source has been rising $100,000, the heaviest in the history of the office possibly with the exception of last year, when one payment of $60,000 was made on the Gallup estate in Lebanon. This year the largest amount received in any one claim was $9,207.55 from an Exeter estate, while the remainder has come in small sums from innumerable sources.

AMONG OUR EXCHANGES

Refuse to Pay.

One criticism does not make an agitation, or the Japanese peers, stigmatized by one Suenobu, a famous business man, as equally greedy mean, might begin to have a fellow feeling for the lords of Britain. It seems that Mr. Suenobu, who is promoting a great relief fund for distribution among the Japanese masses, finds the peers deaf to his appeal. The Mikado has headed the paper with the magnificent sum of $500,000. Many wealthy commoners have given with proportionate generosity, but the nobles have done so little as to inspire Mr. Suenobu that the energetic leadership of Dock Com. while Admiral Togo and General Nagai are paid about $15,000 a year salaries, those peers who proclaim themselves "bulwarks of the throne" draw about $500,000 per annum, mainly from grants, privileges or other good things dating from medieval Japan. Mr. Suenobu admits that he loses patience when his appeal is ignored by families which have been receiving half a million per annum for three centuries, and for body of shallow water on the collectors everywhere will sympathize with him.—Boston Transcript.

Another Disappointment.

It appears that Secretary Wilson is as mild as he was expected to be in the report of Doctor Wiley's technical transgressions he has made to the President. That is to say, he recommends that the great pure food expert be "admonished," but not dismissed.

This is very good sense on the venerable gentleman's part. It is better judgment than that displayed by Wickersham who urged that Wiley be visited with "condign punishment," presumably dismissal. He recognizes Wiley's tremendous value to the government and to the people. He wants the doctor to stay.

There is little doubt that Mr. Taft will accept the Wilson rather than the Wickersham verdict. Again the grafters, the adulterers and the misandrers are to be disappointed.—Boston Post.

SEE YOUR OWN CITY FIRST

The Chicago Association of Commerce has arranged trips of inspection for aldermen and citizens which extend to all points within that city's zone of activity. The purpose is to acquaint the participants with the scope and character of the industries that contribute to the commercial greatness of the community. These include passenger and freight terminals, railroad yards, junctions, belt lines, factories, grain warehouses, storage warehouses, lumber, tannery and packing districts. The idea might be easily elaborated, as it probably will be, so that the inspection can be extended into parts of the city that are neither industrial nor commercial but yet of prime importance. The ordinary city resident anywhere does not know his own city. There are people in Chicago as elsewhere who are ignorant of all sides of their city, save the sides in which they do business and reside. They are thus deprived of knowledge they should possess before they venture to visit other cities. Those who see only one side of a city do not know it as a whole. They may be the best of citizens in some respects, but their lack of understanding is, nevertheless, a handicap to their usefulness.

If voters knew their cities better, knew all their ins and outs, grasped the conditions under which the masses of their people live, were able to appreciate the wants and needs of the populace, they could serve their communities far better than they do at the polls. One advantage of the practical politician is that he does understand his city and the people of his city. As a rule, he can talk intelligently about all parts of it to people from all parts of it. When he appears among the masses they understand him, and they know that he understands them.

Really, the duty of the good citizen begins in the community in which he lives. If he performs it there, he will not be far from its performance toward his state and his country. If he knows his city well, he will not be far from knowledge of his state and country.—Christian Science Monitor.

See Your Own City First

Partizan Praise to the President. President Taft may well be pleased with that Nebraska endorsement. It is not only complimentary, but enthusiastic, especial attention being paid to the "factfulness" which the President showed during the Mexican crisis and to the fact that he is prosecuting "illegal trusts and combines without fear or favor." Mention is also made of the administrative reforms which are making for "economy and efficiency." But these are really the least, and certainly not the happiest, of the various references, for it is as a champion of reciprocity and of international peace that the President has made the strongest impressions upon the people.

As regards these two subjects, the praise and the support both come from all sides. But how can a President make much popular progress with such embarrassing Cabinet officials around him as Wickersham and Wilson?—Boston Journal.

What New York Does

Even with the $9,000,000 appropriation for harbor improvement Boston has no time to lose if it is to put up an effective competition against New York. That city under the energetic leadership of Dock Com. missioner Calvin Tomkins, is steadily expanding its now congested port facilities and terminal facilities. The great Jamaica Bay improvement, the development of the little used South Brooklyn water front and the solution of the difficult terminal problem along the west side of Manhattan Island are all progressing toward successful completion.

Jamaica Bay is a huge semi-circular bay for three centuries, and for body of shallow water on the

FIFTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Gleanings From Files of Portsmouth Chronicle

A dispatch from Richmond, 22nd, says, "Congress met at noon and after prayer was offered, the following dispatch was read:

"Manassas Junction, Sunday evening. Night has closed upon a hard fought field. Our forces were victorious. The enemy was routed and fled precipitately, abandoning a large amount of arms, ammunition, knapsacks and baggage. The ground is around are strewn with the wounded and farm houses and the grounds around are strewn with the wounded. Pursuit was continued along several routes towards Leesburg and Centerville until darkness covered the fugitives. We have captured a number of field batteries and stands of arms and Union State flags and many prisoners have been taken. Too high praise cannot be bestowed whether for skill of our principal officers or for the gallantry of all our troops. The battle was fought mainly on our left. Our force was 15,000 and that of the enemy estimated at 35,000.

(Signed) JEFFERSON DAVIS." Another dispatch says that the entire rebel force was about 40,000 and the Federal forces nearly 80,000. No particulars have been received of the dead and wounded.

It is said that needles sell in the South for five cents each, and that two or three weeks since a man southern shore of Long Island. It forms the major portion of the southern boundary of the boroughs of Brooklyn and Queens. The dredging of this bay and the completion of the extensive docks and terminals planned for its shores will effect a revolution in the port of New York. The passage of freight steamers will be shortened some hours, and the inconveniences of the present terminals will be overcome. Federal co-operations has been secured and a $250,000 appropriation is being used in preliminary surveys.

Private enterprise has already done much for the water front in South Brooklyn. Model terminals have been built by the Bush company, and the city has constructed a number of piers large enough to berth the biggest vessels afloat. Tomkins now proposes a municipal shore-line railroad transfer yard, float bridge station and new docks to unify and organize all these private and public facilities under municipal supervision. A bill just passed by the New York State Legislature authorized the creation of a new kind of corporation with powers directly related to the control and operation of a water front railroad terminal such as would be created under the Dock Department plans.

Along the North River on Manhattan Island the problems are less easy of solution. But here, too, progress can be noted. The New York Chamber of Commerce working in co-operation with the municipal authorities has already persuaded the War Department to authorize the extension of several piers to allow the docking of the Olympic and the Titanic, the new giant White Star liners.

A more effective articulation of the entire North River water front is prepared by two recent legislative measures. One gives the Board of Estimate power to authorize the Dock Commissioner to acquire property for terminal facilities and equipment. This is a beginning in the substitution of a broad municipal control and distribution of facilities that are now in the hands of a few corporations serving selfish interests. The New York Central Railroad has been a notable offender. It has had an exclusive right of way along the water front into the heart of Manhattan Island. After years of urgent effort the Legislature has been persuaded to pass a bill taking these tracks off the city streets. Mr. Tomkins came forward promptly with a proposal to build an elevated railroad along the water front to be used by all railroads, with docks, floats and warehouse so distributed as to put the limited space along the water front to the most effective use.

All this shows how much is done to maintain Gotham's seaboard supremacy. Her rivals along the Atlantic coast must show similar energy. —Boston Herald.

smuggled into Nashville, in his trunk and about his person, a sufficient number to clear upwards of two thousand dollars. He has since made a similar speculation upon spool cotton, also a scarce article, and like needles, likely to escape detection.

Among the graduates of Dartmouth College at the commencement which occurred last week, were Wm. W. Dow and George E. Hodgdon of this city. Joseph B. Upham, Jr. graduates at Bowdoin College, at Brunswick, Me., at their next commencement, Aug. These, we think, complete the list of our Portsmouth graduates the present year.

Secretary Cameron, being overrun with applications from ladies for the places of nurses in the army hospitals, thought to get rid of their importunities by issuing a decree that those who have accepted the post should not wear hoops. Finding this readily agreed to by his women, his next dodge was to issue an order that no one should be accepted who was under thirty years of age. This did the business. There were no women of that age in the country.

Miss Augusta Evans, of Mobile, the authoress of "Beulah," is now in the rebel camp at Norfolk, attending the sick.

CORPORATIONS MAY FACE U.S. COURTS

In the hands of United States District Attorney Charles W. Holt rests the prosecution of more than 300 corporations in the revenue district of New Hampshire that have failed to file the corporation return with Dr. Edgar O. Crossman of this city, who is the collector of internal revenue. Prosecution will not begin at once, according to the department but the evading corporations have neglected an opportunity to "settle" and they will be made defendants in criminal suits.

There are approximately 5000 corporations in the district that includes Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont. The law concerning them is that they must file a return of their yearly business, showing particularly the gross income and gross expenditures, in order that they may be taxed upon their profit in business if they are fortunate enough to be making a taxable amount. That return must be filed in March.

When hundreds of the firms failed to conform to the corporation law, they gradually drew under the wire but others continued to be neglected. They were notified that they had disobeyed the law but that they might "compromise." The corporations that took advantage of the compromise allowed by the government were fined various amounts less than $1000. Those firms that have continued to ignore the law are subject to a fine ranging from $1000 to $10,000.

PREMIER ASQUITH'S STATEMENT. London, July 27.—Premier Asquith made a statement in the house of commons today on the subject of Morocco fully bore out the description of the situation as one of real anxiety.

The position, the premier said, had reached a point at which it was bound to become difficult and harassing unless a solution was found. It is reported that the attention of the British cabinet is turned to this question almost to the exclusion, for the moment, of home politics.

The promised statement of Sir Edward in house of commons this evening was awaited with the keenest interest, for the secretary of foreign affairs was expected to appeal for the united support of all parties to hold up the hands of the government in the defence of Great Britain's best interest.

Mr. Asquith said that Great Britain was not a party to the conversations proceeding between France and Germany, but earnestly and sincerely desired to see them result in an arrangement honorable and satisfactory to all parties.

not to enter into the details of the situation at the present moment.

The premier said that the government had thought it right from the beginning to make it clear that, failing Britain must become an active party to a satisfactory settlement, Great to a discussion of the situation.

HIS EXPLANATION.

Sir:—

On July 27, 1911, an article appeared in the Portsmouth Daily Chronicle in reference to my being picked up as a straggler from the U. S. S. Washington by certain guardians of the peace of the province of Portsmouth.

In reference to the above, I will state that I was on my way to the Washington, to report the expiration of my leave, when I was met by two policemen who knew me, and their first conclusion was that I was a straggler. It is certainly a limit when one cannot go through the town in civilian's clothes without being taken up by the police as a straggler.

Very respectfully,
C. L. LITTLEFIELD,
Oiler, U. S. Navy.

Patrons of Music Hall are getting one of the best shows ever offered in this city for ten cents. The bill is an especially strong one this week.

KNIGHTS WON IN THE FOURTH

Consolidation Put Up a Great Game, But Lost When Carter Was Struck.

The Knights of Columbus defeated the Consolidation Coal company in a very fast game in the Sunset League series on Thursday evening, taking the game in the fourth inning when Fernald went to pieces and a combination of hits, errors and ect gave the Knights seven runs. The Consolidation had held the lead up to that winning, Fernald allowing two hits only, and it looked like a shut-out. J. Driscoll pitched for the Knights, and he was effective.

The Consolidation opened by scoring in the first inning. Smart was thrown out at first by Flanagan, and Fernald struck out. Blaney drove out a two-base hit and scored on a wild pitch. G. Jamerson drew a pass and stole second and third, but he was left as Carter was thrown out by Reardon.

The Knights failed to score. Reardon went out, Blaney to Jamerson, Flanagan struck out and Kirvan was given a pass, but was thrown out in trying to steal second.

Score C. C. 1, K. C. 0.

There was nothing doing for the Consolidation in the second. Dowling struck out, and Jamerson got life on Reardon's error, and Grover fled out to Mates, Jamerson being retired on Bruce's grounder to McWilliams and was forced at second.

The Knights failed to score in the second. After O'Brien singled he went to second on a passed ball, but in trying to extend it to third was thrown out. Hefferman and Mates came the C. C. opened with Smart were out on flies to Jamerson and making a single, but Blaney was out on a fly to Flanagan and Fernald Smart.

Neither side scored in the third, drove one to Flanagan who threw Smart opened with a fly to Hefferman out at first and Kirvan doubled

Tigers Brilliant Young First Baseman, Whose Return Is Anxiously Awaited

DEL GAINER
BASEBALL ASSOCIATION

Detroit, July 28—Del Gainer, the Tiger's brilliant young first baseman who had his wrist broken by a pitched ball thrown from the hand of pitcher Jack Coombs over two months ago, is expected to resume his old position at the initial station within the next two weeks. Del has been practicing with the team for some time and is in fairly good shape. Before his injury Gainer was playing a great game at first, and batting like a streak. With the youngster back in his old position Manager Jennings believes the Tigers will experience but little difficulty in capturing the pennant.

TO TEST LOCOMOTIVES

The Interstate commerce commission has issued orders which will add addition work in the motive department of the Boston and Maine railroad. The order pertains to the care of locomotive and requires monthly tests of stay bolts and wash out of all engines. Along with the orders for monthly work it directs that every year the lagging shall be removed from the boiler and steam dome, the safety valve and steam gauge tested thoroughly. Boiler tubes are required to be removed cleaned and repaired. A report must be forwarded to the commission of all tests made and this to be signed by a notary public and by the foreman of round houses and those who have charge of engines.

HAMPTON BEACH

Hampton Beach, July 28—At White Island at the southerly part of the beach two horses have, this week, become fast in the sand where the recent water service was extended. The trench was refilled, but the incoming tide has softened the mass with the result that horses as well as people have gone into it for two of three feet, help being required to extricate them.

Yesterday a horse owned by E. G. Cole of Hampton grocer, got stuck in the depths of the trench, and the service of several nearby residents as well as those of the driver, were necessary to free the animal, which was badly frightened. A short time after a horse owned by J. G. Cornel, an Exeter, vegetable dealer sank near the same place, sinking in up to his body. Help was secured, and the creature was finally liberated, it being necessary to take off most of the load and the harness in order to accomplish this task.

Mrs. Annie Rowell of Nashua, who is stopping on the island attempted to cross the place shortly after the tide went out, and she went in nearly up to her arms, her cries for help bringing aid, and she was finally extricated. It is an unusual state of affairs, caused by the daily run of tide which loosens the sand with which the trench is refilled. People and drivers are being advised, to shun the place and seek another approach to the island by another route.

THE COUNTRY CLUB SOCIAL

LARGELY ATTENDED AND SOME INTERESTING TENNIS GAMES PLAYED

The social at the Country Club on Thursday afternoon was the most successful of any so far held, with a crowd that was the largest seen at the club.

There was a special interest in the tennis matches which were played, and all had good galleries. In the men's singles George McQuestion defeated C. W. Bass, and in the doubles Ward and Marlin defeated Kelley and Taylor. In the ladies' doubles Misses Lighton and Woods defeated Miss Ward and Mrs. McDonough.

In the bridge tournament played at the club house Mrs. James Conlon took first prize and Mrs. Harry Harding, second.

At six o'clock basket lunch was in order and this was followed by dancing until ten o'clock, for which Horace L. Rowe presided at the piano.

The patronesses were Mrs. E. S. Daniels and Mrs. G. B. Lord. For the next social Mrs. George D. Marcy and Mrs. Benjamin Green will act.

mitted to duplicate her feat of 1888 as the leader of the world-wide naval pageant that will go through the Panama canal in 1915. The Oregon, he says, should show how the trip of 1888 would have been made and how much time would have been saved, had the canal been in operation. "No better example of the increased efficiency of the United States navy," said Mr. Ross, "could be provided than to permit the Oregon to lead the battleships of the world through the Panama canal on its opening, beginning a triumphant voyage to San Francisco for the opening of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition.

The acting secretary of the navy, Mr. Winthrop, when the suggestion was made to him, said there was no doubt that great sensational interest would attach to such an honor for the Oregon. "Whether the navy department adopts the plan," he said, will depend on the public. If there is sufficient sentiment in favor of having the Oregon lead the pageant, I have no doubt that it will be arranged. In 1915, the Oregon will be nearly twenty years old. This is the usual life of a battleship, and after 1915 the days of the old Oregon will be numbered. She will not be discarded, but will no longer be classed as a first class ship.

WINTHROP VISITS WEST POINT

Beckman Winthrop, assistant secretary of the navy, has returned to Washington after a week-end trip to West Point. He made a visit to Fort Mifflin in the Hudson river to inspect the naval magazine and also visited the United States Military Academy at West Point. Mr. Winthrop has visited the Naval Academy at Annapolis.

THEIR FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Costello will today celebrate their fiftieth anniversary of their wedding at their home on Sheaf street.

Kittens are generally viewed as cute and harmless pets for little children, but the truth is that they are among the worst germ carriers we have.

Praties may go out of sight as a result of the drought, but there is reason for comfort in the thought that there is a better crop of apples in sight than for a number of years.

A section of wire netting makes a fine trellis for Champion of England peas, and also a good perching place for the grosbeaks that like to shell and eat the green peas as a relish between rations of potato bugs.

There is no profit whatever in keeping hens of the "star boarder" type through the molting period for the few eggs they may lay in the fall. They should be converted into toothsome stew or shipped to market.

A musty old rat is an unloving morsel to the family cat when she has had her appetite aroused with two or three juicy young birds, and it is quite natural that she should pass the former up when the latter are to be had.

The aim of the designers of women's dress styles seems to be to make them so outlandish in style that it will be impossible to make them over into anything that it would be safe to wear outside the back yard. Surely the woman is deserving of pity!

Post timber felled the last week in July will outlast two cut during the winter months. The reason for it seems to be that it has a chance to dry thoroughly before being set in the ground. In any event a year should elapse between time of cutting and setting.

The habit some animals, old and young, have of eating dirt is usually due to the fact that some mineral element is not present in sufficient quantities in the ration which they are getting. Where such tendency is noticed bran or other bone forming feed should be furnished; also salt and an abundance of pure water.

Evidence a-plenty is forthcoming to show that the presence of cedar trees in the vicinity of apple orchards is a prolific source of the cedar rust which has done much damage during the past year or two. Little help has been derived from spraying, and the only way to keep an orchard free from the disease is to cut down all red cedar trees in the neighborhood.

Stock that is not used to eating alfalfa have to learn to like it the way some folks do olives and lobsters. On the farm of a friend, who was growing a small patch of the legume for the first time, the farm animals had the range of this alfalfa, clover and some timothy and blue grass. It was interesting to notice that while the alfalfa was the most nutritious forage available, the stock ate everything else before they would touch it.

While birds like the robin and brown thrush never build or rebuild their nest in the same place during the same season, the writer has noticed with much interest that a pair of the latter have built a new nest in the same sycamore bush as the one from which they led a brood of little ones about four weeks ago. Wrens, on the other hand, will rebuild their nests in the same place and will do it the more quickly if all the old nest material is removed.

A gang of sharpers have been "working" a number of old soldiers and soldiers' widows in Kansas lately. The grifters posed as representatives of the government who were introducing a new electric belt (price only $100), which they guaranteed would give long life and happiness, and they augmented their sales by promising that the government would increase the pensions of all purchasers. Just so long as suckers of this type run around loose they are bound to get caught.

There are two or three points in the artificial watering of gardens that it is well to keep in mind. One of these is that water should be put on growing vegetation only in the evening or early in the morning. Applied when the sun is shining brightly, it is likely to scald and kill garden stuff. Another point worth keeping in mind is that unless watering is kept up systematically during dry and heated spells it is often worse than no watering at all. And, lastly, it is important to remember that a frequent stirring of the surface soil, which will bring up subsoil moisture, is preferable in every way to an application of water without cultivation.

A pound of raisins, cured with special reference to eating out of hand, costs at retail 15 cents. Not only are they an appetizing ration, but they the standpoint of nutritive elements they compare favorably pound for pound with meat and eggs at the same price.

A Vermont farmer who has tested the method for twenty years, reports in an eastern farm journal that he has successfully killed willow trees, root and top, by removing a two foot girdle of bark the latter part of August. For many readers who have had trouble killing these hardy trees this suggestion is worth remembering.

Good profits may be made in dairying and fruit raising; but, if reports are to be credited, the easiest money is made by a big army of sharks and grafters who make a business of farming suckers, the class of folks who are always hotfoot to get something for nothing, the crop of which seems perennial, like quack grass, mumps and fleas.

The low form of vegetable life that makes the green scum in water tanks may be done away with by dissolving copper sulphate in the tank at the rate of one two-hundredths of a pound of the chemical to a hundred gallons of water. This chemical is poisonous and used in larger quantities than this would be injurious to the stock drinking it.

Conditions point to a record breaking cotton crop for the year. The area planted is 35,991,000 acres, as compared with 33,418,000 last year, while the condition of the crop as reported June 1 was $7.8 of a normal as compared with $2 per cent for the corresponding period in 1910 and $0.9 per cent, the average condition for the past ten years.

While the growth of timber of the hardwood varieties is usually a mark of a fertile soil, it cannot always be relied upon as indicative of the character of the surface soil, as the roots of many trees penetrate deep. But where one finds clover growing naturally the evidence is quite conclusive that the soil is rich and also that it is sweet and does not need liming.

An experiment made recently by the department of agriculture for the purpose of testing the shrinkage in corn in storage showed that 23,000 pounds of shelled corn kept under ordinary conditions for a period of 147 days lost 1,070 pounds, or about 7 per cent, as a result of evaporation of moisture. Weighings made at frequent intervals showed that the corn gained in weight in wet weather and shrank correspondingly in dry.

A lot of farmers who do not live in territory usually termed semi-arid have been confronted with a pretty stiff dry farming proposition this year and out of it all may learn something that will stand them in good stead in the years to come. One of these lessons is the advantage of a very thorough preparation of the seed bed for small grain also the harrowing of small grain to break the crust after it is up; secondly, the distinct advantage of a frequent and careful tilage of such crops as corn and potatoes.

The writer has seen some pretty effective execution done within the past few weeks with one of the guillotine or terror rat traps. Cheese, grain or a piece of meat makes excellent bait, but a small piece of bone with gristle attached and tied to the tongue of the trap is perhaps the best bait of all. Care should be used in setting the trap, for a blow that will break a rat's back or crush its skull is apt to break the bone of one's finger. While the campaign is being waged the traps should be attended to daily, baited at night and emptied in the morning. Moreover, the traps should be placed so that neither kittens, chickens nor children can have access to them.

A number of state experiment stations are now offering courses in poultry management especially designed to fit men who desire to go into poultry farming for themselves. Among practical lines taken up are feeding, the use of incubators and brooders, anatomy and physiology of poultry, marketing various poultry products and poultry judging. There is little question that it would be time and money well spent for those planning to take up poultry raising on an extensive scale and possessing no previous experience to take just such a course. They would be able to secure instruction from experts and acquire experience in the business without the heavy losses that often accompany the early efforts of novices who take up the poultry business.

July and August are pre-eminently the two months in which that joint rooting, drought defying pest, crab grass, gets in its work, often counteracting and rendering futile most of the good hoe and cultivator work done during May and June. It is fortunate that crab grass is an annual. This means that the root does not live through the winter and that to exterminate it all one needs to do is to keep it from going to seed. It is hard to overcome, for the reason that it makes most of its growth in corn, potatoes and other cultivated crops after they have been laid by; hence to get rid of it one must wage a persistent fight from now on by pulling and hoeing so as to keep any seed from maturing. This will require a lot of persevering work when the sun beats down hard, but the reward will be a clean garden next season.

THE OYSTER SHELL BARK LOUSE.

A reader of these notes brings us a twig from an apple tree quite badly infected with a scale which is gray in color, a little wider than the body of a pin and about an eighth of an inch long. These scales are scattered thick on the small limbs and, our friend says, have practically killed several young trees, having been at work for the past two or three years. This scale is the protective covering of the oyster shell bark louse, which is safe beneath it and is able to suck the juices of the bark unmolested. While it is a pest that does not spread in an orchard with great rapidity, it is nevertheless one that should be combated vigorously. The best spray to use is the lime-sulphur, which may be applied in the fall after the leaves have fallen or in the early spring before they start. One can buy good commercial lime-sulphur in quantity desired or make it at home. For a small amount bring five gallons of water to a boil, preferably in an iron receptacle, and add five pounds of fresh stone lime and about three and three-fourths pounds of four of sulphur, the latter being made into a paste by mixing with a small amount of water. This solution should be boiled for about an hour, or until a clear liquid results. It should then be diluted to about twelve gallons and applied when warm to trees already infected and others in the same tract. A less effective solution for immediate use with the trees are in leaf is the kerosene emulsion, made by dissolving a pound of soap in a gallon of hot water and adding thereto while still warm two gallons of kerosene. This should be stirred and churned until a cream emulsion results, which before using should be diluted in about twelve gallons of water. In spraying the trees especial care should be taken to see that all parts of the tree are covered, so that the destruction of the pest will be complete.

A TERRIBLE DROUGHT.

If reports coming direct from the country west of the Missouri river can be believed there are sections of the territory mentioned which are now experiencing the worst and most disastrous drought in a period of thirty or forty years. It has been aggravated greatly owing to the fact that the drought of the present season follows on the heels of the unusually protracted dry spell of last year. In many localities the soil was so dry the past spring that the seed sown has not yet germinated. In other sections where the seed germinated and grew and gave promise of abundant yield harvest hopes have been blasted by week after week of withering, blistering, burning heat, with no refreshing rain or cool interval to stay the disaster, which in Oklahoma and portions of Kansas, Nebraska and South Dakota seems to be about as complete as could be. Thousands of unfortunate homesteaders in the drought stricken belt, with reserve depleted as a result of last year's drought, will have to have aid where they are, starve or leave their claims and throw themselves on the mercy and support of relatives and friends. In many states further east the drought has been severe, but has been relieved at intervals by rain, but in the territory first mentioned it has been well nigh indescribable.

A BLESSING IN DISGUISE.

A calamity is often a blessing in disguise. In no event of large importance has the truth of this fact been more forcefully demonstrated than in the visitation upon certain sections of the south of the cotton boll weevil. For a time dire disaster seemed about to overwhelm the localities visited by the pest, but the very fact that tillers of the soil were compelled to turn to the raising of other crops—corn, milo maize, field peas and beans, clover and alfalfa—and to dairying and stock raising has, in fact, been of the greatest possible benefit to the pest ridden sections. Some important lessons have been gleaned from the experience, among them that there is more money in diversified farming than in cotton raising, that soil fertility can be maintained and even increased if the legumes are used in rotation and if dairying and stock raising is carried on; that more cotton can be produced per acre in rotation with other crops, and that the boll weevil pest is greatly reduced as a direct result of rotation. It has further demonstrated pretty clearly to the southern cotton grower that he can just as well produce on his own plantation a whole lot of the things he has been shipping in from a distance at long prices and heavy transportation charges.

THE HIGHWAY MUTILATOR.

A good many folk who travel country roads by auto or team hope for the day to come when a newly appointed road supervisor shall not think he has done his full duty along the line of highway improvement when he has heaped a lot of roadside sod and soft earth into the middle of the highway and left it there without pulverizing, dragging or top dressing of any kind whatever. We know of a number of instances where really good stretches of road top dressed with gravel not so very long ago, but worn a bit, have been mutilated in the above fashion and rendered well nigh impassable. Men who know no more about the science of road building than this might be appointed township dog catchers, but they should not be given appointment as road supervisors.

TEN WAR SHIPS TO BE PUT IN RESERVE

Washington, July 27.—The Navy Department has taken the first step toward the formation of reserve fleets on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts by ordering the famous battleship Oregon and the cruiser St. Louis to be placed in commission and kept in reserve at the Bremerton Naval Station on Puget Sound. There soon will be added to this nucleus the cruisers Pennsylvania, Charleston, Milwaukee and Galveston. On the Atlantic side no less than ten warship will be commissioned in the reserve fleet. Probably these vessels will be assembled at the Philadelphia Navy Yard.

The purpose of creating these reserves is to find the necessary number of officers and bluejackets to man the new battleships and the large number of torpedo boat destroyers and submarines soon to come from the builders' hands. In the case of the Oregon, which in full commission and active service would require a crew numbering about 700, from 180 to 200 men will suffice to keep her in the reserve fleet, ready for action in case of emergency the moment the necessary number of sailors could be found to fill other skeleton crews. The reserve vessels will not undertake any cruises, but will be at their docks or swing from their moorings, the monotony of ship life for the crews being varied only by the work of turning over the engines at short intervals and manipulating the guns.

HELD IN $800 BONDS

MICHAEL LANDER ACCUSED OF
ATTEMPT TO PICK A POCKET

Michael Lander, who was arrested on Wednesday evening charged with attempt at pick-pocketing, was arraigned before Judge Stines, and on the evidence held in $800 bonds for the October term of court and in default of bail he was committed to jail. At the jail when searched he was found to have a bag in his underclothing containing nearly a hundred dollars in addition to $30 taken from him when arrested.

The married woman brought back from Dover was not arraigned.

MASCOT DEAD.

WANTS UNIFORM HOURS.

Congressman Curley of Massachusetts thinks postoffice clerks and carriers in first and second class offices work too long hours and has introduced a bill for their benefit. The bill provides that eight hours shall constitute a day's work and that no person shall be required to work in excess of 48 hours per week. The bill also provides that a working day shall begin when a clerk or carrier reports for duty. The day state congressman says postoffice men under the present system may work three hours today and twenty-three tomorrow.

My Corns Don't Hurt A Bit.

Tired, Ailing, Swollen, Smelly, Sweaty Feet, Corns, Callouses and Bunions, TIZ Cures Right Off

Say good-bye to your corns the very first time you use TIZ. You will never know you have a corn, bunion or callous, or sweaty, tired, swollen, aching feet any more. It's just wonderful the way the pain vanishes. Rub the corn—hammer it with your fist if you wish—no more pain after TIZ than if there had never been a blemish on your feet. Doesn't that sound good to you? Doesn't it? Then read this.

"The corns on either of my toes were as large as the tablets you make to cure them. Today there is no sign of corns on either foot and no soreness. It's an up-to-date Godsend.—Sam. A. Hoover, Progress, N. C.

Just use TIZ. It's not like anything else for the purpose you ever heard of. It's the only foot remedy ever made which acts on the principal of drawing out all the poisonous exudations which cause sore feet. Powders and other remedies merely clog up the pores. TIZ cleans them out and keeps them clean. It works right off. You will feel better the very first time it's used. Use it a week and you can forget you ever had sore feet. There is nothing on earth that can compare with it. TIZ is for sale at all druggists, 25 cents per box or direct, if you wish, from Walter Luther Dodge & Co., Chicago, Ill.

WOULDN'T STAY OUSTED.

Champ Clark's Church Experience in His Early Days.

Champ Clark became a member of the Campbellite church very early in life, and thereby hangs a tale.

While still a young man he went to the town of Louisiana, Mo., to establish himself. The town was a lusty, bustling, typical Mississippi river town of the steamboat era, and there was a good deal of life there, in which Mr. Clark became a factor. Evening parties to take moonlight trips up and down the river were very much in vogue, and one evening the young lawyer went up the river on one of these parties, which had chartered a barge called the Maude, in tow of the river steamer War Eagle. There was dancing on the Maude, in tow of the river steamer War Eagle. There was dancing on the Maude, in tow of the river steamer War Eagle.

When the next Sunday rolled around and young Clark, unconscious of the coming storm, went as usual to the Campbellite church, where a few weeks previous he had put in his letter from the church he had belonged to back east, his case was called up, and after a swift but formal trial before services at the bar of the church he was unanimously expelled from membership for dancing. Chagrined, humiliated and crestfallen, young Clark wandered forth in a despondent mood, but after waiting around for a time he resolutely returned to the church, slipped in and took a seat on the last bench in the rear, observed by none. There he sat and heard a sermon on backsliding that seemed to be directed at him alone.

As was the custom in the Campbellite church, an invitation was extended by the pastor at the end of the sermon for repentant sinners to come forward and kneel at the chancel.

When this invitation was extended Champ Clark solemnly arose, marched forward to the mourners' bench and to the astonishment of the congregation, took his place with the penitents. The pastor was surprised; the deacons were stunned with astonishment, and all were temporarily at their wits' end to know what to do with the repentant brother who only that morning had been expelled from the congregation. The book containing the rules and laws of the church was hastily dug up and consulted. All the officials put their heads together, but there was only one thing to do—a repentant sinner could not be turned away, so Clark went back into the fold and there abided to this day.

Entirely Too Much.

Departures from the old way in things educational come in for hard rap first and last, but not often are they assailed as in this letter, which a glowering boy handed to his teacher the other day: "Madam you kept telling my son to breathe with his diaphragm but how about when their diaphragms but how about when their father only makes 2 dollars a day and there's 4 younger I tell you it's enough to make everybody socialists first its onb thing and then its another and now its diaphragms its too much."—Kansas City Star.

SANDY'S SCRUPLES.

They Almost Kept the Tourists From Getting the Boat.

A couple of tourists staying at a village which is in close proximity to a well known Scottish loch had a fancy one fine Sunday to go for a row on the loch. They accordingly sallied forth in search of the boatman, whom they met just leaving his house, dressed in his Sunday best and carrying a Bible under his arm.

"We want to go for a row," said one of the tourists.

"Due ye no' ken it's the Sabbath?" answered Sandy. "Ye'll no' get a boat fer me the day, forby I'll hae ye the ken that I am an elder o' the kirk."

"Yes, yes," expostulated the tourists, "that's all very well for you, but we don't require you with us. We can go to church; we can row ourselves."

"Aye, aye," said the elder, "but just think whilt the minister 'll say."

"Never mind the minister," was the reply, "we'll know nothing about it. We will pay you well."

"Ah, weel," said Sandy, "I'll no' let ye the boat, but I'll tell ye whilt I'll dae. Due ye see ye wee boatie doon among the rushes? Weel, she's ready wi' the oars inside. Just ye gang doon there an' row out tae the middle o' the loch, an' I'll come doon tae the bank an' swear at ye. But never ye mind ye just row on an' I'll call for the money on Monday."—London Idler.

CROWNED HIMSELF.

An Impromptu Ceremony in Which King George IV. Figured.

That was a curious sort of impromptu coronation in which his majesty King William IV. of England figured. Things did not go very well with Earl Grey's government after the second reading of the first reform bill had been carried by a majority of one in 1831, and one Friday in April they suddenly got the king to go down and preside over a parliament in person. Somebody went off to the Tower to fetch the crown, and with a scratch body of attendants his majesty drove down to the house of lords. What happened there is described in Greeley's memoirs.

The king might not properly to have worn the crown, never having been crowned, but when he was in the ruling mood he said to Lord Hastings: "Lord Hastings, I wear the crown. Where is it?" It was brought to him, and when Lord Hastings was going to get it on his head he said, "Nobody shall put the crown on my head but myself." He put it on and then turned to Lord Grey and said, "Now, my lord, the coronation is over."

The crown did not fit very well, we are told, but the coronation was successfully effected.—London Chronicle.

Serving Soup.

If anybody were asked to suggest why the soup plate was made broad and shallow the almost certain answer would be that such an arrangement facilitates the reaching of the soup to a temperature comfortable to the mouth. We believe that utilitarians drink tea out of a saucer for the same reason. While that may be the explanation of the peculiar shape of the soup plate, the advantage indicated is surely insignificant compared with the obvious disadvantages which may probably arise from exposing to large a surface of nutrient food to the air. Soup should be served in a cup, a low broad tureen, and the method, which is coming more usual, is hygienic. To keep a vessel would be an error on the other side. Its advantages would be canceled by its great drawback. We should miss some of the delicate flavors of the soup.—London Lancet.

Stage Scenery.

Walter Pritchard Eaton, the dramatic critic, believes modern dramas are too elaborately staged. In "The Question of Scenery" in the American Magazine he says:

"After all, it was not the Elizabethans who were stupid because they could enjoy the drama on a bare stage. It is we who are stupid because we cannot enjoy the drama unless the stage is littered with realistic scenery. We have to faith in our own imaginative powers. It would be a good thing for the drama if all scenery were abolished for the next ten years. Having learned to get along without it, we would perhaps keep it in its proper place for awhile after it returned. Its proper place is as a pictorial and suggestive background to the actors and the play and nothing but a background."

Ruined by Jesting.

The Antiochenes themselves brought about the ruin of this beautiful city of Antioch, the ancient capital of the Greek kings of Syria. These people were famous for their lifting and scurrilous wit as well as their luxury in devising nicknames. When the Persians under Chosroes invaded Syria in 538 the Antiochenes could not refrain from jesting at them. Ample revenge for this was taken by the Persians, who totally destroyed the city.

Would Do His Own Biting.

The British gentleman new to our shores stepped up to the cigar counter and requested of the "clerk" a cigar. "What will you have, a bit cigar?" asked the "clerk." "No; I'd rather bite it myself," replied the Briton.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Men Are Bees.

Every man is the center of perpetual radiation like a luminous body. He is, as it were, a beacon which entices a ship upon the rocks if it does not guide it into port.—Amiel.

Full pound 25 cents.
Dover is looking for an additional supply of water and the council wants to take it from the Isingslake river at Barrington. It is the same all over New England. Every city is looking for an additional supply of water.
The lower end of Market street has for the past two weeks been opened for water mains, and for the past three days not a shovel has been used on the job and it looks as though it were deserted. The merchants of that street have raised a big objection to the way the street had been kept open, and Mayor Badger made an investigation on Thursday, but he was unable to give an explanation of the cause of the delay.
There was a lively scrap on Water street last evening between two sailors, and as the crowd gathered in a ring to give them fair play, a hurried call was sent to the police station that there was a riot. Officers Murphy and McCaffery were sent to the scene, but before they got there Officers Kelley and Philbrick, who were at the other end of the boat, had arrived, but the fight had stopped and the men disappeared.

Charles J. O'Neill Out of Wholesale and Retail Liquor Dealers

Charles J. O'Neill of Walpole and Bellevue Falls is no longer at the head of the New Hampshire Wholesale and Retail Liquor Dealers association. He retired yesterday during the outing at Rand's grove, Jenness Beach. Mr. O'Neill has launched his destiny with the newspapers business, has abandoned his connection with the liquor traffic and assumes that he could not continue as a bona-fide president. Before his departure from office he appointed a committee of twenty five to name his successor and to choose the other officers of the association.

NAVY YARD

Head of Division Sails

Capt. F. W. Bartlett, U. S. N., went to Provincetown today on the Washington, to return with his family by rail.

There is considerable going on and a general shake up of the officers on the ships now here.

Paducah Soon to Arrive

The Paducah, after ten days at
New York, will sail for this yard.

Washington Sails

The big cruiser Washington came out of the dry dock at 11 o'clock and sailed directly for Provincetown, Mass., to join the fleet.

The new commandant will hoist his flag on August 1.

Ordered Back

Chief Machinist Otto Johnson has been ordered to this navy yard. Chief Johnson was but recently detached from this station.

The officers of the yard give a hop tomorrow evening in honor of Miss Owen and the Misses Cugle of Washington, house guests of Capt. F. A.
Wilner, U. S. N.

Rear Admiral S. A. Staunton, U.
S. N., commander of the armored cruiser squadron, hoisted his flag on the Washington yesterday afternoon, having returned from a trip to Washington.

Ordered to the Georgia

Machinist T. J. Hayes has been detached from the machinery division at this yard and ordered to the battleship Georgia.

Navy Orders

Chief Machinist H. Smith, from Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md., to the Hartford.

Chief Machinist A. Cottrell, from the New Hampshire to home and wait orders.

Chief Machinist J. M. Ober, from the Hancock to the Washington.
Machinist D. W. Harry, from the Hartford to the New Jersey.

Changes in Trial Board

There will be no further trials on the Rockland course the present year unless the government build dread-nought Florida should be sent here in December.

After the Neptune's tests are ended there will also be radical changes in the makeup of the trial board.
Capt. T. Snowden will be succeeded as president by Capt. A. Fletcher and Commander C. F. Hughes will be succeeded as recorder by Lieut. Commander Thomas J. Senn, now of the U. S. S. Rhode Island. Commander Hughes will become commander of the scout cruiser Chester.

The naval history of the converted yacht Hist now at this yard, purchased at the outbreak of the Spanish American war, was ended when she was stricken from the register of war vessels and shortly will be offered for sale. The Hist was formerly the private yacht Thesapia. The Hist was Thursday forced out of commission here last week.

The Herald Hears

That one of the veteran firemen has not yet recovered from his work on the brakes on Muster day, when he blistered both hands and heated up the wood work on the Eureka.

That the speeders have taken a tip and there is not so much racing on Miller avenue.

That Portsmouth certainly has had its share of traveling musicians this summer.

That Noble's Island will yet be a busy section in the North End.

That the rain of Monday, helped out but very little but today's looks good.

That the Boston and Maine railroad will have a good bill to settle in fire claims.

That the fire apparatus would surely have a hard time getting along Richards avenue at present if called out to a fire in that part of the city.

That the First Company, Coast Artillery, may get in some practice on the guns at the fort before the regular encampment.

That Inspector Andrews appears to be doing business every minute of the day.

That it's time now to start the fall fair.

That the sergeants of the marine guard at the naval prison may some day issue a sweeping challenge at bowling.

That York Beach has had plenty of excitement this summer with fire especially.

That the names of the New Castle fleet of boats that carry workmen back and forth from the navy yard given by a certain mechanic at the yard has made a bit but not with the New Castle people.

That the engines of the fire department which have for several years needed repairs will very likely need the same for a while longer.

That the Sunset League has created more interest in baseball than anything since Portsmouth was in the New England League.

NORTHEAST STORM

Heavy rain that will relieve the drought.

A north east storm with a heavy rain broke early this morning and it will do a great deal to relieve the drought. Rain fell steadily all the forenoon and the indications are this afternoon for a continuation. At noon the rain came down in torrents the gutters running full along the streets.

Emerson Piano
Quality.

Quality in a Piano is absolutely essential, for a poor quality Piano is not a Piano at all. It may be a "furniture piano" if you will, but it is not a musical one —and what is the good of a Piano if it is no musical?

The Emerson Piano seems to grow better every day. The makers of this instrument have lately surpassed themselves. The Pianos that are now coming to us are simply magnificent. The touch, the tone, and the finish are better than ever before.

The more difficult you are to please, the better we shall like it, for you cannot but be pleased with these instruments, yet with all their goodness they are sold for a fair price on easy terms.
